Things to keep in mind when writing a resolution

UNPO Members are entitled to submit Resolutions to be considered for adoption by the General Assembly to formally declare opinion concerning a topic and outline the concrete actions to be taken. Resolutions may be submitted by individual representatives outlining key concerns or as a joint statement from a group or coalition of members who are united by similar themes. You may even suggest a resolution on a thematic issue which you believe deserves specific attention.

This is an opportunity to voice specific concerns, emphasise your standpoint or call for action. The points made in the Resolutions will inevitably help to guide the agenda of the General Assembly meeting, with the ultimate aim of persuading other members to approve and demonstrate formal support. Every resolution must be in accordance with the UNPO Covenant.

A resolution is contained within one sentence with each clause separated by semi colons and each clause should start with a verb such as those below (though this list is not exhaustive):

Affirming	Having examined	Confirms
Alarmed by	Having heard	Considers
Approving	Having received	Declares accordingly
Aware of	Having studied	Deplores

The resolution should be set up in the following way:

Submitted by (Member): _____
Organization: _____
Co-submitters (if joint resolution): _____

The UNPO General Assembly :

In this section summarise the key issue or concern and outline background information to introduce the topic.

It is also worth mentioning positive developments which you are assured by such as quoting ratification of human rights instruments.

Therefore, we, the UNPO General Assembly :

Outline the concrete action which you would like the General Assembly to support in the form of a condemnation, request to be put to the UN or European parliament or recommendation for future steps. These points should be numbered.

Example of Member Resolution

Joint Resolution

Submitted by: Ahwazi and Baloch nation members of UNPO on behalf of the Congress of Nationalities for a Federal Iran.
Organizations: Democratic Solidarity Party of Ahwaz, Ahwaz Human Rights Organization, Balochistan People's Party
Co-submitter: Kurdish Democratic Party of Iran

The UNPO General Assembly,

Underlines that Iran is a multi-ethnic, multinational and multilingual country, composed of Turks, Persians, Arabs, Kurds, Baloch, Turkmen and others;

Notes that the 1/3 Persian minority has ruled this country since 1925, the result of which is that today's Iran faces a cultural and linguistic apartheid;

Notes that in this non-homogenous country, an attempt is being made to artificially turn Iran into a nationstate, a decision made by the Persian elite-aristocracy and the ultra-nationalists, at the exclusion of all other constituent national and ethnic groups;

Notes that successive governments have continued the pursuit of a centralized national-state at the exclusion of others, leaving national minorities (Azeri-Turks, Arabs, Kurds, Baloch, Turkmen, and others), along with the women of Iran, as the most discriminated segments of society;

Emphasises that there is a great deal of national awakening taking place among the non-dominant national minorities, as a result of revolution in communication technology and globalization;

Noting that the advent of the internet and emergence of satellite TV had played an instrumental role in this national and irreversible process of self-awakening;

Emphasising that while the Iranian ruling mullahs are unwilling and incapable of addressing the root causes of instability which is the exclusion of 2/3 non-Persian national groups, there is the realization that although Azeri Turks, Kurds, Arabs, Baloch, and Turkmen, who are subjected to more or less the same repression and persecution, cannot alone change the situation, but together and in cooperation they are capable of this task. It is for this reason that the leading political parties representing these nationalities came together to form the Congress of Nationalities for Federalism in February 2005 in London;

Noting that the Congress believes that it is the responsibility of all these nationalities to decide, with equal voice, the future of Iran and to solve the chronic internal crisis brought about by successive dictatorships;

Underlining that the Congress' mission is to energize its critical masses to bring about a peaceful change of the current regime in Iran. Its vision is to establish a peaceful, stable and secure country and a democratic, secular civil society by strengthening relations among various national and religious groups within Iran and promoting democracy, social justice, federalism, rule of law, human rights, equal rights for women and protection of the rights of all ethnic and religious minorities including Baha'is, Christians, Jews, Mandanians, Zoroastrians and Sunnis. Under CNFI's vision, future Iran will be a responsible country and a good member of the International Community;

Noting that whilst each nationality believes in its inalienable right to self determination and does not want to forgo or forfeit this right, but that faced with the UN and the internationally community that does not necessarily share this view of the basic fundamental right of self determination, and that as a pragmatic entity, the Congress believes that all nationalities in Iran want and have the desire to live side by side in a federal or in a nonfederal system of governance;

Noting that CNFI hopes for a democratic, peaceful, secular and federal Iran, and a responsible member of the International Community;

Noting that where all Iran's constituent national and ethnic groups unite together to chart the future course of Iran, this will present a serious challenge to the Islamic Republic of Iran, presently oppressing its peoples and presenting a danger to the peace and security of the region and the world;

Noting that the Congress believes that this is the only way out of the current crisis in Iran, and that other choices, such as the status quo, are unsustainable or face an uncertain future;

Noting that Congress members will not participate in any socio-economic experience that does not guarantee them the right of self determination – internal or external – as enshrined and guaranteed by international law;

Therefore, we, the UNPO General Assembly:

1. Condemn the repression and persecution of ethnic and religious minorities in Iran;

Resolution Template for the 10th UNPO GA

2. Request the UN General Secretary to initiate an investigation and dispatch a fact finding mission to the areas of al-Ahwaz (Khuzestan), Kurdistan, Balochistan and Azerbaijan to look into the issues of ethnic cleansing and serious human rights violations.
